

How Americans Got Left Behind in the Global Economy

By the Council on Foreign Relations

The American economy is in trouble. The middle class is shrinking, wages are stagnant, and income inequality is growing. Meanwhile, other countries are racing ahead. China is now the world's second-largest economy, and India is not far behind. How did this happen? And what can be done to fix it?

In How Americans Got Left Behind in the Global Economy, the Council on Foreign Relations argues that the United States has lost its competitive edge. The country has failed to invest in education, infrastructure, and research and development. It has also allowed its manufacturing base to erode. As a result, the United States is now less productive and less competitive than other countries.
